

For my contribution to the Hidden Heritage blog as a portion of my AS-L requirement for the completion of the MLIS program at St. John's University, I will work with an image of a page from a log that is a part of the Smithsonian Institution's Freedmen's Bureau collection. The selection with which I will work for the HH Blog has the following copyright permissions, as detailed by the Smithsonian Institution:

“The Smithsonian Institution thanks all digital volunteers that transcribed and reviewed this material. Your work enriches Smithsonian collections, making them available to anyone with an interest in using them. The Smithsonian Institution (the "Smithsonian") provides the content on this website (transcription.si.edu), other Smithsonian websites, and third-party sites on which it maintains a presence ("SI Websites") in support of its mission for the "increase and diffusion of knowledge." The Smithsonian invites visitors to use its online content for personal, educational and other non-commercial purposes. By using this website, you accept and agree to abide by the following terms. If sharing the material in personal and educational contexts, please cite the Freedmen's Bureau as source of the content and the project title as provided at the top of the document. Include the accession number or collection name; when possible, link to the Freedmen's Bureau website.”

This may also be viewed at the following link:

https://transcription.si.edu/pdf/47617/NMAAHC-007675287_00050